

On behalf of BDC, I would like to welcome you to the Global Women in AgriTech Summit.

As a development bank, BDC has been working alongside entrepreneurs for 80 years to help them build stronger, more competitive, and more resilient businesses. We are therefore proud to support this unifying event, which brings together women who are passionate, committed, and forward-thinking in a field as promising as food and agricultural technologies.

This summit is a great opportunity to learn from one another, and to network to advance our industry's practices on a global scale. Collectively, you are contributing to a greener, more sustainable and more inclusive future, by deploying innovative and concrete solutions to the challenges of our time.

I wish you enriching discussions and inspiring business meetings that will motivate you to take action.

Have a wonderful and successful Summit!
